

JOB OPPORTUNITY

Junior Analyst

American Environics, a cutting-edge political strategy research firm based in the San Francisco Bay Area, is looking for a junior analyst to assist us with day-to-day analytical tasks. An ideal candidate would have a social science background, experience with statistics, and be extremely detail-oriented. The position may begin as a internship, but could transition into to a more permanent position depending on the candidate's experience, performance, goals, and motivation.

Duties/Responsibilities

- Use various statistical techniques to create a wide range of internal or external work products, with direction and training from senior staff
- Format deliverables in Excel and PowerPoint
- Maintain and improve in-house data organization
- Assist in management of surveys and focus groups field activities

Qualifications

- Interest in American politics with a passion for reframing progressive politics for the 21st Century
- Coursework in statistics, specifically as they pertain to the social sciences; experience with multivariate techniques a plus
- Experience in Excel and SPSS
- Experience writing SPSS syntax ideal but not required. Must be willing to learn.
- Extremely detail-oriented and organized

Salary: $35,000, plus relocation expenses as required

Contact: Please send resume and cover letter to info@americanenvironics.com

Company Background

American Environics (AE) was founded in 2004 by a team of American strategists and Canadian researchers. Our partner organization is Environics, one of Canada's largest marketing research firms. Environics has been conducting research into changing social values for over twenty years. American Environics makes this research and its innovative applications available to social change strategists, philanthropists, and political candidates. Our American Values Survey is now the most sophisticated social values, political psychology, and psychographic targeting tool of its kind.

The American Values Survey has been conducted since 1992 in the U.S. In partnership with one of Canada's largest marketing research firms, American Environics brings more than 30 years of experience with applied social values and political psychology research.

American Environics brings the tools of cognitive science, linguistics, and social psychology to evaluate the underlying and largely unconscious cognitive models, narratives, and worldviews that shape the way Americans reason about the world. Finally, American Environics has helped organizations working on everything from health care to economic development to environmental protection to develop Strategic Initiatives that flow from shared social values, worldviews, and ways of reasoning.

American Environics is a vision and values-driven company. We are committed to bringing cutting-edge social science tools to inform social change strategies with the goal of creating a politics that grows self-expression and fulfillment values in the culture. Our core values are imagination, innovation, audacity, and integrity.